STREET CAR FARES HAVE WIDE RANGE; PUBLIC PAYS BILLS

or fare than that to which they are entitled.

The federal investigating commission has no authority to enforce its findings. It can only make recommendations. The owners hope that local communities will follow the recommendations of the federal commission. The verdict of that commission will give them something as a defense against the condemnation of the voters.

There are one or two solutions already under consideration. In Cleveland and in Cincinnati there is a provision for an equalizing fund which becomes a sort of money reservoir from which operating expenses are paid.

Reservoir Fund Used. If, for example, the companies are allowed to charge a 7 cent fare, if the experiment provides ample funds, the reservoir will rise. When it gets to a certain point the fare automatically goes back to 6 cents. If the level is maintained this fare is pronounced adequate. If the level falls below a certain mark, indicating a loss, it is automatically raised again. Such a barometer established that will provide sufficient money and prevent an exploitation of the public.

In the meantime there is a great discrepancy in the fares charged in different cities. In Boston where the elevated and the surface system are operated by a state board of trustees under an arrangement which guarantees a return for the investment, fares are 7 cents, then to 8 and finally, just recently, to 10 cents. In Cleveland where they were once a 3 cent fare the rate is now 5 cents with an additional cent for a transfer. Washington has gone from six tickets for a quarter to 5 cents straight, and now charges 2 cents for a transfer, which charges are held to be inadequate. There is infinite variety in fares around one city for street car fare and transfers between Maine and Mexico.

RAILROAD NEWS

Callor Navock After a short vacation has returned to work. He decided that the early morning shift was not suited to his liking so he now starts to work at noon.

Is there any possible chance of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad running their main line trains from Chicago to Minneapolis through Janesville? This question is being freely asked by many of the local men who would greatly benefit by the change.

Brakeman Heagerty of the Mineral Point division, has returned home after spending a short vacation in Milwaukee. He decided that he could have more fun around Brodhead than in Milwaukee.

Trainmaster R. E. Sizer has returned to Madison after a short business trip to Janesville and other cities on the Mineral Point division.

Conductor J. J. Dulin, Chicago and Northwestern railroad, is enjoying his annual vacation in the wilds of northern Michigan. He will return the latter part of next week.

Business on both roads is far below the average and many men are hoping that the cars will soon start rolling. It has been the dulllest summer on both roads in many years, they say.

Rene Koch, demurrage clerk for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road, is spending a great deal of his spare time in Chicago watching the White Sox perform. He is accompanied by Eugene Brown on some of his expeditions.

School Clerks' Reports Are Due by Friday

School clerks' annual reports are due Friday, at the county superintendent's office, reminds Supt. O. E. Antisdel. The blanks were sent out from the superintendent's office some time ago with instructions to the clerks to make two reports, one to be sent immediately to the county superintendent, the other to be placed on file for the use of the school officers. Up to date only 40 reports have been received at the county office. This is only one-fourth of the number which should be in. These reports must be sent in on time to enable Superintendent Antisdel and his assistants to make out their report to the state department.

ONLY A LA CARTE.

Philadelphia.—An old alumnus of the University of Pennsylvania started out to a well known Chestnut street restaurant to attend a fraternity dinner the other evening.

"You have a Theta Delta Chi dinner here tonight, haven't you?" he asked the attendant at the door.

"No, sir," replied the hat check expert as he snatched the new straw lid of the alumnus. "But we've got the best a la carte dinner in the U. S."

PLANNING MAIN STREETS

The importance of the proper planning of the main streets of the city is well understood, yet this is only a part of city planning. However, it is as important and if the work be wisely done has immense influence upon industrial and business efficiency and the economies of city life. Main streets—both reaching out and connecting the heart of the city with the distant suburbs, and circumferential thoroughfares, uniting these radials—must be well planned for present needs and for the future. They must be planned to reduce the expense of transportation of goods and people from one part of the city most directly to other parts. Provision must be made for their proper care and maintenance if we would have an economical condition of living and doing business.

A city planning board, working continuously, can assist in this work of perfecting and carrying out all the wise provisions of those who have been engaged on this important department of civic evolution.

In many cases it can focus attention and bring public support to the perfecting of links in a complete plan which have hitherto been delayed or not fully realized as important. A properly unified and complete plan of main thoroughfares will save thousands of dollars annually to business men and tax payers.

P. O. CLERKS PUT IT OVER ON CARRIERS

The clerks and carriers of the post-office enjoyed a stag picnic at the Bear cottage up the river yesterday afternoon. They all went up about 5:30. Robert Bear took some in his launch. Upon arriving a game of baseball was played between the clerks and carriers, the clerks winning by a score of 8 to 6. The losing of the game on the part of the carriers was no fault of theirs, though. (Having nothing else to blame it on they blamed it on John Hemming, who umpired). The line-ups were as follows:

Carriers: Baum, c; Quinn, p; Joyce, 1b; Capelle, 2b; Sykes, 3b; McDonald, ss; Genortz, rf; Goodwin, cf; Homer, lf.

Clerks: Madden, c; Denning, p; Yahn, 1b; O'Hara, 2b; Ehrlinger, 3b; Birmingham, ss; Palmer, rf; Dawson, cf; Kaempfein, lf.

The clerks were also victorious over the carriers in the quill contest. The big feature of the picnic was the automobile race between Bones Elser in his speedy Buick roadster and his pal, Yutch, in his silver speeder. Yutch won this race and the $100 purse. He was disappointed when he found that there was a decimal after the 1. Bones Elser was a badly disappointed man as he had figured on the prize. However, he was lucky to escape with his life when, on the 10 mile stretch, he cast a tire.

A sumptuous supper was served at the Bear cottage. After a few remarks by the coast-guard, one of the carriers, Mr. Garvey, Chicago, an old pal of John Gleason's, was introduced. He gave a number of witty speeches and at a late hour the party left for Janesville, after giving a rousing vote of thanks for the supper and use of the cottage.

U. B. Church Gives Two Ice Cream Socials

Two ice cream socials have been given this week under the auspices of the United Brethren church.

The first one was held Tuesday afternoon and evening on the lawn of the David Clark home on Madison avenue. This was under the direction of division No. 2, Helping Hand. In the afternoon a short business meeting was held. Ice cream and cake were served all afternoon and evening by the 16 women members of the division.

Last evening at the home of Mrs. A. P. Wood, Milton avenue, the other social was given by the Junior and Senior Endeavor. The lawn was electrically lighted. A victrola furnished the music. Charles Fisher and Paul Clayton had charge of affairs last evening. About $19 was realized for the social, which will go into the liquidation or building fund of the church.

STREET IN FLAMES

Philadelphia.—A trolley car of the Frankford, Holmesburg & Tacony line was trapped and narrowly escaped destruction with its burden of screaming passengers when Frankford avenue caught fire at the intersection of Solly street. Workmen were repairing the avenue with liquid tar which burst into flame from curb to curb. Firemen saved the carload of passengers.

NEVER HEARD OF WAR

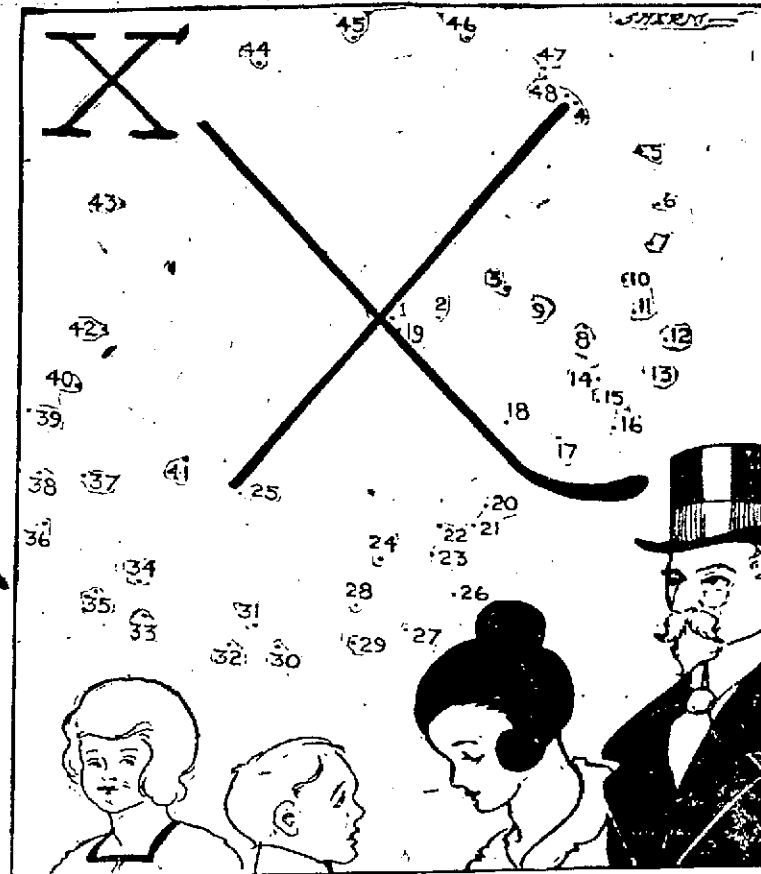

London.—A woman of nearly two, living in Helens road, Windsor, is still unaware that there has been a world war.

When she was informed that Ascot races were taking place for the first time in five years she said she thought they had been done away with.

A dozen of her near relatives fought in the war, but it was thought best not to tell her about it.

LOST LIFE SAVING COW. Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—At the cost of his own life John Petrolonis of Upper Pittston saved the life of his cow when he ran in front of a train to scare her off the track. The cow jumped to safety, but as Petrolonis was about to leap the pilot of the engine struck him and he was killed beneath the wheels.

TIES HANDS TO KILL SELF. Philadelphia.—To make sure that he would not attempt to save his life, George Engard of North Marshall street tied his hands behind his back with a double slip knot before hanging himself. With his hands tied Engard jumped from the top of a box and was strangled by a rope tied to a gutter.

THE DOT DRAWING CLASS

"When I met Dr. Brown on my way to school this morning," said the Dot Drawing teacher, "I asked him what the letter 'X' reminded him of. And he answered promptly that it reminded him of a bill for ten dollars that he had never been able to collect. Then I had to explain to him that we wanted to draw something around the 'X' so he looked to me for a small picture that he had just left. He said that he had had a hard time getting a good look at the patient's (37)

SECTION WORKER SAYS HE WAS HIT

A Greek laborer employed by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad as a section hand came staggering into the police station about 2 o'clock this afternoon shouting that he had been attacked and nearly killed by a fellow worker. The injured man was covered with blood.

Acting Chief Morrissey questioned the man, but owing to the inability of the injured man to speak English it was difficult to get his story. Between sobs he managed to tell Chief Morrissey that he had been struck in the head with a shovel.

His wound was cared for and it was found to be only a deep gash from the edge of a shovel. His head was bandaged and he again started to tell his story.

Chief Morrissey accompanied the man to the railroad yards where the section men seemed to know nothing of the affair and were openly hostile to the injured man.

DOG LICENSE LAW
FRAMED TO MAKE
CANINES STAY AT HOME

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, July 24.—Although many complaints are being received from the rural communities regarding the new license law, the state department of agriculture is preparing to go ahead with the making of the blanks and other arrangements for putting the measure into force next spring. For the past 20 years efforts have been made at every session of the legislature to pass a dog license bill, and while the measure has gone through several times, it has usually been vetoed by the executive. This time it has been approved by Governor E. L. Philipp, who announced, however, that he had many misgivings as to how the law would be received.

person may kill a dog, whether licensed or unlicensed, if found killing or worrying any domestic animal.

The idea back of the bill is to kill off all stray dogs which worry sheep and cattle. The bill makes it the duty of the owner of a dog to keep him at home from sunset to sunrise. Any dog found off the premises of its owner between sunset and sunrise and unaccompanied by its owner or some one in control of it, shall be considered an unlicensed dog and a nuisance and may be seized and killed. The fund which is built up in the town by the dog license money shall be used to pay damages to persons whose animals are killed by dogs. The owners of domestic animals, including poultry, attacked, worried or killed, may within 10 days file a notice with the town clerk, with the claim for damages. These claims shall be solely against the dog fund and shall create no other liability on the part of the owner.

Dogs brought into the state temporarily for a period of not exceeding 30 days for show purposes, if kept confined, shall be exempt from the provisions of the law.

Haan, 32nd Leader,
to Speak in Madison

Madison, July 24.—Brig. Gen. W. G. Haan, as head of the 32nd division, troops of the Wisconsin and Michigan national guards in France will deliver the principal address before the annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Historical society here, Oct. 23. Announcement of his acceptance of the invitation to speak was made by Supt. M. M. Quaipe of the society today.

The invitation to General Haan, who is now on the general staff of the army war college at Washington, was extended by Mr. Quaipe some time ago. His definite reply has just been received. Governor Philipp has also sent a letter to General Haan asking him to come and it is now probable in view of the acceptance of the invitation of the Wisconsin Historical society, that additional arrangements will be made for a general reception of the war leader here.

General Haan has told the historical society that he will use as the subject of his address here, the topic of "A Division Commander's work for one day in entering battle." For the day he will select one of the worst days of the drive in France—a day that turned out successfully for the Americans.

Economy Begins With The Use
Of Wadhams 27c Gasoline
Don't Let It End There

WADHAMS is not "knocking" its lower priced gasoline—the truth can't hurt a good product.

And Wadhams 27 cent gasoline is a good product—hundreds of Janesville motorists will testify to the fact.

That's just where the trouble comes in! A majority of the Janesville users of Wadhams True Gasoline think that the Wadhams 27c grade is the best gasoline sold in Janesville.

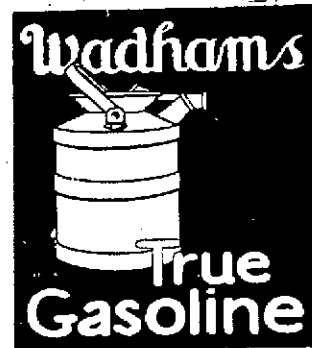

Most emphatically this is not the case. The Wadhams 27c gasoline is the best motor fuel at the price. But there is a higher grade of Wadhams. It is the genuine old-fashioned gasoline, the very cream of the petroleum—quick-starting, even-firing, keroseneless and carbonless—the highest grade motor fuel on the market.

True Gasoline
Wadhams 30
cents

THIS is the gasoline that has been accepted as the most economical and satisfactory motor fuel in practically every community where it has been introduced. In Milwaukee, where the vast majority of discriminating motorists have turned to Wadhams, this 30c gasoline outsells the lower priced Wadhams gasoline many times over.

By all means use Wadhams 27c gasoline in preference to a vile compound of near-gasoline squeezed from crude oil dregs, such as monopoly offers you under a camouflage of quality. But remember that economy does not end with the use of a straight-run gasoline, but with the use of the best—Wadhams True Gasoline—30c a gallon.

$2,000 Per Week Collected for Auto Licenses

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, July 24.—An average of $2,000 a week is being collected by the two automobile inspectors appointed by the Secretary of State Meritt Lull. These inspectors are visiting all localities in the state and are rounding up men who have failed to take out licenses for the operation of their cars. One man was found who had two cars, but was trying to make one set of number plates do for both vehicles. Others were found who thought that last year's license was good enough. Each inspector is averaging about $1,000 a week and, with the aid of the city police, who are now called to the assistance of the department, many thousands of dollars will be added in license fees.

JEFFERSON ON ENTANGLE-MENTS.

Whether we are to have a peace league or not, we shall certainly hold interest in how this famous principle came into being is shed by a letter which Thomas Jefferson wrote to President Monroe on October 28, 1823, when asked his opinions on international developments of the time.
Jefferson said:

"The question presented by the letters you have sent me, is the most momentous which has been ever offered to my contemplation since that of Independence, that made us a nation. This sets our compass and points the course which we are to steer through the ocean of time opening on us, and never could we en-cumber it under circumstances more auspicious."

"Our first and fundamental maxim
should be never to entangle ourselves
in the broils of Europe; our second,
never to suffer Europe to inter-meddle with our American affairs. America, North and South, has a set of interests distinct from those of Europe, and particularly her own. She should therefore have a system of her own, separate and apart from that of Europe. While the last is laboring to become the domicile of despotism, our endeavor should surely be to make our hemisphere that of freedom."

"One nation, most of all, could disturb us in this pursuit: she now offers to lead, aid and accompany us in it.
By acceding to her propositions, we detach her from the band of despots, bring her from the mighty weight into the scale of free government, and emancipate a continent at one stroke, which might linger long in doubt and difficulty. Great Britain is the nation which can do us the most harm of any one or all, on earth; and with her on our side we need not fear the whole world. With her then we should be most sedulously cherish a cordial friendship; and nothing would tend more to kind our affections than to be fighting one another, side by side, in the same cause."

The Monroe doctrine came into being in this wise: The Holy Alliance, including Prussia, Austria and Russia, considered taking a hand in South America, following the successful rebellion of several Spanish dominions there. Through our ambassador, Richard Rush, the British foreign office urged President Monroe to declare that the United States would not tolerate any foreign meddling in the Americas. Monroe consulted many public men on the wisdom and desirability of this course, among them Jefferson. In the end he followed the course suggested by Britain.

What may we draw from Jefferson's letter, part of which is quoted above, and what applications may we make of his suggestions to present day problems?

Jefferson held that we would be wise to keep out of entanglements with European despots. He also declared that we would do well to accept the co-operation of Great Britain in thwarting the ambitious schemes of the plotters of the Holy Alliance.

Jefferson thought that promulgation of the Monroe doctrine might bring on war, in which the United States and Great Britain would be allies. He favored the strong stand in spite of dangers and ventured the belief that England and America might be drawn closer together by fighting side by side in a common cause.

There is ammunition for both sides
in the peace league debate in this letter of Jefferson's. We are told that one hand that it would be wise to avoid broils. On the other, we are counseled to welcome British assistance in keeping the Americas free from the influence of despots.

The views of Washington and Jefferson were sound in their day, and are interesting now, but times have changed and present day problems
must be settled in the light of modern conditions.

WHEN THE DEVIL WAS SICK.

These are the days when over-synpathetic persons of a certain type would do well to watch themselves
and keep their memories sharpened.
Else they are likely to find themselves commiserating over Kaiser Bill when they read that he is so badly scared
over the prospects of being tried for his misdeeds that he spends his days in gloomy meditation and prayer, and that he prefers to talk on religious subjects only. He is literally sick with apprehension. We may well believe that his ruling thought is:
"What are they going to do with me?
Hang me or shoot me?"

Americans who feel themselves
slipping, who find themselves beginning to pity the Kaiser and deprecate
the "hard" terms thrust upon Germany, would do well to recall a few such events in recent history as these:
The slaughter of aged men and women, as well as children, in Belgium in 1914.

The shooting down of defenseless
and inoffensive persons held as hostages.

The desecration of countless homes.
The Lusitania slaughter.

The execution of Edith Cavell.

Poison gas, air raids, deportation of girls to labor camps, the shelling of towns, crucifixion of prisoners, burning of elevators and grain ships in America, bomb outrages.

It will do well to remember that Kaiser Bill, now mumbling prayers and shuddering in his boots, was only a little more than a year ago,

brandishing his shining sword before the world and vowing that he would bring all opposing peoples to their knees before him.

Did he waste much sympathy on anyone then? Not that we recall.
"When the devil was sick, the devil saint would be; when the devil was well, the devil a saint was he."

Now comes Senator Smoot with the announcement that the wholesale grocers are back of the move to put the packers under strict regulatory control. No matter who is back of it, if congress will devise some means of not only getting prices of meats, but
of other necessities down to where the ordinary mortal can buy them without taking nearly all he earns, some good will come of the effort to clear the situation.

With the passing of George Brim-rose, another of America's premier entertainers has followed the long line that has wended its way to final reward. Brimrose was a minstrel man of the old school, one of the best soft-shoe dancers in the business, and had a large following in every large amusement center in the world. He will be missed by the public as well as
by the theatrical profession.

It appears, according to testimony of Gen. March, that only the lower grade officers were tried by court martial for alleged brutality in prison camps while the "higher-ups" were not molested. Explanation of this will prove interesting, especially to those who suffered as the result of orders given by those in superior command.

Clergymen of Oakland, Calif., have formed a union. Will that make any difference in the length of sermons?

CRUSOE'S ISLAND.
The name of Robinson Crusoe is forever linked in our memories with a desert island. No particular island is named in the story, but we think of this wayward hero, yet Crusoe himself, or rather Defoe, tells us exactly where his island is, and all but names it.

For many years Juan Fernandez, a Chilean island off the eastern coast of South America, was known as Crusue's Island because another adventurer had spent five years there in solitude, and it was thought for some time that Defoe had recorded this hero's experience.

But following Crusoe's directions
that he landed on an island in a lat-tude of 31 degrees, near the mouth of the Rio Negro river, and in sight of the island of Trinidad, we come upon the island of Tobago, the only one answering the description.

An interesting discovery which gave prominence to Tobago as the real Crusoe's Island occurred some years ago, when the skeleton of a goat was unearthed in a cave on the island. This coincided remarkably with the mouthings of the story that he found a dying goat on a hillside and later buried it here. "Crusoe's goat" became for a time an object of great popular interest and figured as a prominent exhibit at the Chicago World's fair.

Tobago's failure to obtain greater recognition of its importance as the "only authentic Robinson Crusoe Island" is doubtless due to the fact that it is a rather little island, containing chiefly its plantations and fringe. Leaving Crusoe out altogether, Tobago had an eventful history, from the time it was discovered by Christopher Columbus, on his third voyage, until England took it from France in 1803, and started to turn it into a profitable colony. Its present estate after a century of English rule is less that of a desert island than of a partly wooded park cultivated and built-up isle of the tropics.

WALK AMERICA.

Talk nothing but America henceforth and evermore. Let's sing the glorious Stars and Stripes above each humble door.
Let's sing our songs of freedom till they echo from the hills
And every sluggish phrase of doubt
with love of freedom thrills.
Let's make ourselves one family,
north, south and east and west, Devoted to America and working for her best.

Let's seek the truth beneath the flag
for which our sons have died.
No greater happiness for man can alien flags provide.
He that would grow to be a man, erect
and strong and true,
May reach the heights of splendor
neath the red, the white and blue.

Let's dedicate ourselves once more unto the land we love
Till all who live beneath its folds salute the flag above.

What more can mortal man desire on earth the while he lives Than Freedom's opportunity? and that our country gives.

Here none is stifled by despair, nor fettered by the strong.
Ours is a flag that guards the truth,
but never shields a wrong.
If greater glory is to come 'twill need
no banner new,
But will have birth beneath the red and white and starry blue.

Talk nothing but America, united let us stand Against the alien who would spread
the doctrines thro' our land!
Let Terror never stalk by night on Freedom's thoroughfares.

Let's grow to be one family where the glory shines
Beneath our flag all good can come to cheer the life of man.
So out with him who cannot be a true
American!

AMAZONS PLAY TENNIS.

New York.—An American engineer traveling along the upper reaches of the Amazon river, reports finding native women playing "Amazon tennis," sport he says they were using fiber for nets and racquets made of bamboo, bent into shape and strung with grapevine. A small cocoonut served as a ball.

HIRE ROOF GARDEN

New York.—F. C. Petrelli, his wife and two children arrived here in the midst of the hot spell and announced a few minutes later that they were suffocating in their rooms at a well known hotel.

"You've got the coolest place in the house except the roof garden," said
the manager.

"I'll rent the garden, then," replied
the Alaskan, showing the necessary coin, and he did.

kett. Questions will be answered on any subject. Those desiring information write a letter to the Janesville
Daily Gazette, Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C., and enclose a

by our bureau.

Q. What languages does President Wilson speak? T. F. S. answered that the president knows.

Q. What became of the statue of Frederick the Great that was removed from its position in front of the Army War college in Washington? N.
R. S. answered.

A. The statue is now in the basement of the war college where it was placed after its removal from the statue first used the electric street car? J. N. K.

A. The first practical overhead-trolley line was built and used in Kansas City, Missouri, in 1884.

Q. What were the Stanley expeditions? L. K. H.

A. Sir Henry Morton Stanley, a British-African explorer, headed two expeditions into Africa. The first of these was in 1874, when he undertook to complete the work begun by David Livingstone. Two later trips were made in 1879 and 1886, respectively.

Q. Is it true that the hands on clocks outside jewelry stores point to 22 minutes past eight, because Lincoln died at that hour? H. M.

A. This theory is widely circulated,
but is obviously incorrect because Lincoln did not die at that hour. It is said also, that this arrangement was used before Lincoln died. The best accepted theory is that this arrangement of hands offers greatest convenience in using the face of the clock as a sign.
The firm name which is likely to be quite long, appears in the upper part of the dial and the word "jewelers"
in the lower space below.

Q. What are the present boundaries of Roumania? R. H. N.

A. A map showing the new boundaries of all the nations of Europe can be secured free of charge by addressing a request for it to the Janesville Information Bureau, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a two-cent stamp for return postage.

Q. How many passenger cars and motor trucks were shipped to the American expeditionary forces? T. S.

Q. A. The war industries board reports that there were 7,364 passenger cars and 54,843 trucks shipped overseas.

Q. Who was the inventor of the submarine? D. S. W.

A. Simon Lake, an American, developed the first operating submarine.
The idea of the submarine was first set forth by William Bourne, an Englishman, in 1578.

Q. What is the original meaning of the term "high seas"? F. S. A.

A. This term in law applied to the seas outside of territorial jurisdiction
which were free highways to all nations. As such they were known as high seas.

Q. Is the United States a producer of seal-skins? C. W. H.

A. There are but a few colonies of seal in the world. The greatest of these is on Pribilof Island off the coast of Alaska. This island belongs to the United States and the seals which inhabit it are government property. They have long been protected by the government to prevent their extermination and the government kills those individuals that can be spared and markets the skins. Thus does the government have a monopoly

in sealskin production.

Sir Satyendra Prasad Sinha, K. C., will go down to history as representing in his own person more fully than any contemporary Indian the progress of his country toward the ultimate

of his advance-

less remarkable
than that of Mr.

He was the first Indian to be ap-

ten years ago, a member of the viceroy's executive council. He is the first Indian to "take silk" (an honor hitherto jealously confined to the Bar practicing in England) to be a member, (in association with the Maharajah of Bikaner) of the imperial war conference and imperial cabinet in 1917, and now to participate in the peace conference, to be made a member of the ministry in Whitehall and finally to be raised to the peerage, for he is to represent one India office as under secretary in the house of lords.
He is the second Indian (Amee Ali being the first) to be named of the privy council.

Worry is Twin of Fear.

Worry is a homeopathic or attenuated dose of fear, and fear as all know, is a powerful depressant of the circulation and nervous system. It is fear that paralyzes the animal—that is "charmed" by a snake; it is fear that "strikes at the heart" of a child frightened by some real or fancied apparition or threat, predisposing to shock or collapse. It is harmful emotion. There is no doubt that a susceptible individual might be actually "frightened to death."

WORKERS ARE BEING HOUSED IN BARRACKS NEAR SAMSON FACTORY

With Janesville enjoying an industrial boom far greater than any other city in the state, many of the people are asking where the laborers who are coming to the city are going to be housed.

The problem of housing the workers employed on the new buildings at Janesville, in Spring Brook, is being taken care of by the General Motors corporation. Barracks are being erected on the Samson property, where both skilled and unskilled laborers can secure good board and lodging at a nominal cost.

Shortly after the first unit of the Samson Tractor company was started, it was found that Janesville would not be able to properly care for the influx of labor until more houses were erected. In a few weeks after the first working houses were filled to capacity and it was impossible to get a room in any local hotel.

Workers Rushed Here. Workers rushed to Janesville. They were sure of steady work for a long time and the wages being paid were attractive. They came in from all over the state, and after they arrived here they were all eager to remain in Janesville.

Officials of the General Motors corporation decided that the assistance was necessary if the workers were to be housed. They were not condemning the people of Janesville as houses and apartment buildings were being erected as rapidly as possible.

When work on the second unit of the tractor company was started the General Motors corporation decided to establish a colony on their property where the workers would be able to secure a room.

Two barracks, capable of accommodating nearly 100 men, were erected, with a mess hall and wash room and a bathroom. The barracks are being joined. Parked in front of the barracks are a number of cars, and a number of the dining hall and hundreds are being fed in the place each day.

Similar to Army Barracks. The barracks are similar to the ones constructed by the government in the cantonments with the exception that they are divided into rooms. Each room accommodates four men, and the buildings are very high and are located just south of the second Samson unit.

W. H. Nelson, resident engineer of construction, announced that owing to the great number of additional workers coming to the city, it will be necessary to erect more barracks.

Three portable barracks have been purchased and are expected to arrive in a few days. They will be erected near the other buildings and will accommodate nearly 300 men, Mr. Nelson said.

Mr. Nelson said that within the next 10 days there would be accommodations in Janesville for over 450 men and more barracks will be added as the number of workmen is increased.

GIRLS PLAY SNAPPY GAME OF BASEBALL

The girls' baseball team of the Adams playground played a snappy game last night when they outplayed the Webster team by the score of 23 to 11. The game was the best girls' game of the season and the teams seemed to be evenly matched, but during the third Adams piled up 13 scores against the Webster's two.

Donning and Young starred for the Webster team, Denning pitching and Lezow made some peppy plays.

For the Adams, Merrick, Tucker and Lezow made some peppy plays. Lezow made a home run in the second inning, but during the third Adams piled up 13 scores against the Webster's two.

PLUMBERS FAIL TO REACH AGREEMENT

Hopes of the plumbers returning to work this morning were given up when it became known that an agreement had not been reached. Wednesday. Employers announced yesterday that they hoped to reach an agreement with the workers during the day.

E. C. Clemmons, of George and Clemmons, in discussing the walkout said that it was not a strike, as the men simply quit.

"We have an agreement with the men until May 1, 1920, and they cannot call a strike and receive the support of the national association," Mr. Clemmons said.

According to the employers the men are demanding 87 1/2 cents an hour, or an increase of 12 1/2 cents an hour. At the present time they have an agreement with their employers for 75 cents an hour but when they requested a raise they were told the employers would grant them a raise of 5 cents an hour.

At the time of the meeting, no demand was made for 87 1/2 cents an hour, according to the employers. They claim they simply received a request asking for the stipulated amount and after refusing to grant the increase they were told that the men would quit.

SOAP IS APPROPRIATE PRIZE FOR RACES

Candy, pies, stationery and soap were the prizes awarded the victors of the races at the First Lutheran church picnic yesterday at Yost's park. Soap was especially acceptable to little Gladys Larson, who won the clothes pin race, as she was very much in need of soap and water after she reached the goal.

Mrs. Henry Guenée and Miss Alma Johnston retained the laurels which they have held for seven years as winners of the married women's and young women's race.

Rev. T. C. Thorson, who also has made a reputation for himself in marathons, ran off with the honors in the married men's race. At half distance the spirited exhibition was over. Several doughnuts, so he was pronounced the winner of that contest, and with Charles Carlson made the goal first in the three-legged race. The single men's race was won by the single man, in the game between the girls and the boys, the girls scored the highest. They do not believe the boys gave them the game, either.

Miss Mable Keesey and Peter Hammarlund were the judges in the various contests. For dinner and supper were served on the grounds to 150 men, women and children.

At 9:30 in the evening they called it a day and came home.

AIRPLANE TO TAKE UP PASSENGERS

For the first time in the history of the city, Janesville residents will have the opportunity Saturday and Sunday to view the city and surrounding country from the heights to be attained in an airplane. A Curtiss plane, piloted by H. R. Overley until recently an instructor in the American army air service, will make its headquarters in Janesville and the carrying of passengers will be one of the features of its visit.

Besides acting as pilot for Janesville residents who want to ride in the plane, Mr. Overley will give a demonstration of the type of flying taught aviators who were fitted for service on the war fronts.

Mr. Overley and his machine will arrive in Janesville at 10 o'clock, being scheduled to leave Print Airplane, Milwaukee, Saturday at 1 o'clock. In Janesville the fair grounds will be used as headquarters from which both the carrying of passengers and the flying will be made.

E. A. Kemmerer will go to Milwaukee and ride back to Janesville with the aviator.

ABUNDANCE OF FARM LABOR IS REPORTED BY NEW COUNTY AGENT

An unusual abundance of farm labor in all parts of the county is reported by County Agricultural Agent R. T. Glasco who makes a request to farmers to list their help needs with him. He may be notified at his office in the court house at any time.

Mr. Glasco stated that since he began the campaign for farm help two weeks ago, the replies have come in much greater numbers than he thought it possible to expect, in such numbers that the list of applicants is exhausted while the list of farmers who need help is still beginning and the need of more help in the tobacco fields, it appears the overstock of farm labor will soon be exhausted. In some sections harvesting has already been started, while in others it is planned to begin next week, some farmers not yet having their grain cutting finished.

Mr. Glasco is co-operating with W. R. Levy, head of the local federal employment office, in meeting the farmers' wants.

The Daily Novelette

"SPEAKING OF QUEENS"
"Ho, Tommy! Come here a minute," called Pa. "Ask him out the back door."

"You another wants you?"
After Tommy had shot some more marbles and accidentally walked off with several of Joe Brown's white shirts, he ran into the house, with Joe after him but managed to bang the door in the other boy's face.

"What's your awful hurry?" asked Pa.

"Oh, I just came in to do my lessons," he answered, with a studious look on his face.

"That's not what I called you for," growled Pa, who knew some stumping questions were sure to be asked.

"Lessons first and all the time," Thomas said. "You can go on my errand afterwards."

"Pa made a dash for the door but Tommy already had his book out."

"Say, Pa. Before you go out in such a hurry, tell me everything you know about Queen Elizabeth."

"Don't bother me about any Queen Liz. I've got a Queen right here at home bossing me."

"William," interrupted Ma, "you tell your son all about Queen Elizabeth. I don't want to be bothered, that's all, Thomas."

"She was either the daughter of Henry the Sixth with eight wives or Henry the Eighth with six wives, but that makes no difference. She lived in my grandpa's time. I often heard him..."

"But Pa, that was four hundred years ago and if..."

"What does history know about dates? I get my knowledge first-hand from my grandfather. He knew her well, because her Queen Liz as a patname. She was red-headed and wore a circus-clown collar three feet high and she didn't like men, either. She was adamant; that is to say, cold. With words she was an anti-vamp. Also Queen Liz was a pan-handler with the axe and chopped human heads off just like your mother chops cabbage heads."

"Then you'd better look out, Pa," laughed Tommy.

"Pa ignored the shot and settled safely back to enjoy his paper when—" "And Pa, what are pieces of artillery," asked Tommy.

"They're the kind the girl next door plays on the piano and what I'm going to use on you if you don't shut up and let me alone!"

MOTORCYCLE OFFICER SAYS ALL SPEEDERS LOOK ALIKE TO HIM

Motorists, here is a tip and you can govern the speed of your cars accordingly. Officer Tom King, Janesville's motorcycle policeman, admitted this morning that he could not travel over 25 miles an hour and if a person driving a car can manage to hit a 70 mile an hour gait he may be able to outdistance the officer.

"I know I am being called a rough-neck and other names by some of the people driving cars in Janesville, but I have been engaged by the city to put a stop to the people who are using the city streets as race tracks and I will arrest anyone I catch exceeding the speed limit, regardless of who he is," King said today.

For the past five weeks Acting Chief of Police Thomas Morrissey has been receiving numerous complaints from people living on Milton avenue and South Main street about the many autoists who race past their places like Barney Oldfield would if he was chasing Ralph De Palma.

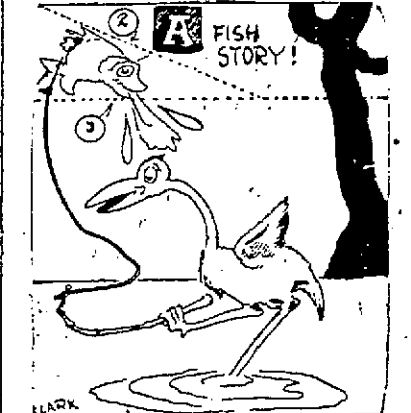

Chief Morrissey instructed King to go out and stop the speeding and arrest all who were caught breaking the law. King claims there are no favorites with him and anyone who thinks he can get by had better have a little chat with the new motorcycle policeman before he starts speeding.

The certificate of deposit is a popular plan of using money that will not be needed for several months. If you have a lump sum of money and want to keep it all in one sum until a special use for it is found you cannot do better than to ask us for a "C. of D." for the amount.

This deposit draws interest and it is safe, easily cashed and easily handled. It is a favorite plan with a good many of our patrons.

"Tell it to the judge," snapped Kelly.

At night court Kelly arraigned his prisoner before Magistrate Corrigan as a pickpocket.

Baltic Islands Be Neutralized, Proposed

Paris, July 24.—The Baltic commission of the peace conference presented a report today recommending that the Aland Islands, between Sweden and Finland at the mouth of the Gulf of Bothnia, be neutralized under the guarantee of the league of nations.

The Aland Islands form an archipelago of 80 inhabited islands and a vast number of rocks and islets. The population is about 12,000. The islands were formerly held by Sweden but were taken over by Russia in 1809.

Early in 1918 when the warfare between the white guards and bolshevik forces became active in Finland and it was reported the Germans planned to make use of the islands in connection with their operations in Finland, Sweden sent troops to occupy the islands.

After the peace conference opened in Paris a delegation from the Aland Islands presented former Premier Orlando of Italy with a claim for annexation to Finland.

The Swedish government, June 25, 1919, sent a note to Finland in reply to one from that government asking the note Sweden insisted that the future of the islands be settled by a plebiscite and that as an alternative the question would be submitted to the peace conference.

Luce looked at this distant thickening reflection. "When we get this far out we can see there must be quite a little smoke hanging over the town," she said. "I suppose that's because it's growing. As it grows bigger it seems to get ashamed of itself, so it makes this cloud and hides in it. Papa says it used to be a big place when he lived here; he always speaks of it differently—a particular tone of voice, I've noticed. He must have been very fond of it. From the way he talks you'd think life here then was just one long midsummer serenade. He declares it was always sunny, that the air wasn't like the air anywhere else—that, as he remembers it, there always seemed to be gold dust in the air. I doubt it! I think it doesn't seem to be duller air to him now just on account of having a little soot in it sometimes, but probably because he was twenty years younger then. It seems to me the gold dust he thinks was here is just his being young that he remembers. I think it was just youth. It is pretty pleasant to be young, isn't it?"

"You're a funny girl," George said gently. "But your voice sounds pretty nice when you think and talk along together like that!"

The horse shook himself all over, and the impatient sleighbells made his wish audible. Accordingly George tightened the reins, and the cutter was off again at a three-minute trot, not delectable rate of speed. It was not long before they were again passing Lucy's Beautiful House, and here George thought fit to put an appendix to his remark. "You're a funny girl, and you know a lot—but I don't believe you know much about architecture!"

Coming toward them, black against the snowy road, was a strange silhouette. It approached moderately and without visible means of progression, so the matter seemed from a distance, but as the cutter shortened the distance the silhouette was revealed to be Mr. Morgan's horseless carriage, conveying four people atop: Mr. Morgan with George's mother beside him, and in the rear seat, Miss Fanny Minner and the Hon. George Amberson. All four seemed to be in the liveliest humor, like high-spirited people upon a new adventure; and Isabel waved her handkerchief dashingly as the cutter flashed by them.

"For the Lord's sake!" George gasped.

"Your mother's a dear," said Lucy. "And she does wear the most bewitching things! She looked like a Russian!"

princess, though I doubt if they're that handsome."

George said nothing; he drove on till they had crossed Amberson addition and reached the stone pillars at the head of National avenue. There he turned.

"Let's go back and take another look at that old sewing machine," he said. "It certainly is the weirdest, craziest!"

He left the sentence unfinished, and presently they were again in sight of the old sewing machine. George shouted mockingly.

Alas! three figures stood in the road, and a pair of legs with the toes turned up indicated that a fourth figure lay upon its back in the snow, beneath a horseless carriage that had decided to need a horse.

George became yelpiferous with laughter, and coming up to his trotter's best gait, snoring spraying from runners and every hoof, swerved to the side of the road and shot by shouting, "Git a hoss! Git a hoss! Git a hoss!"

Three hundred yards away he turned and came back, racing; leaning out as he passed, to wave jeeringly at the group about the disabled machine: "Git a hoss! Git a hoss! Git a!"

The trotter had broken into a gallop, and Lucy cried a warning: "Be careful!" she said. "Look where you're driving! There's a ditch on that side. Look!"

George turned too late; the cutter's right runner went into the ditch and snapped off; the little sleigh upset, and, after dragging its occupants some fifteen yards, left them lying together in a bank of snow. Then the vigorous young horse kicked himself free of all annoyances and disappeared down the road, galloping cheerfully.

CHAPTER VII.

When George regained some measure of his presence of mind Miss Lucy Morgan's cheek, snowy and cold, was pressing his nose slightly to one side; and a monstrous amount of her furboa seemed to mingle with an equally unpalatable quantity of snow in his mouth. He was confused, but conscious of no objection to any of these juxtapositions. She was apparently uninjured, for she sat up, hatless, her hair down, and said mildly: "Good heavens!"

Though her father had been under his machine when they passed, he was the first to reach them. He threw himself on his knees beside his daughter, but found her already laughing, and was reassured. "They're all right," he called to Isabel, who was running toward them ahead of her brother and Fanny Minner. "This snowbank's a feather bed—nothing the matter with them at all. Don't look so pale!"

"Good Heavens!"

"George!" she gasped. "George!" George was on his feet, snow all over him.

"Don't make a fuss, mother! Nothing the matter. That darned silly horse!"

Sudden tears stood in Isabel's eyes. "To see you down underneath—dragging—oh!" Then with shaking hands she began to brush the snow from him.

"Let me alone," he protested. "You'll ruin your gloves. You're getting snow all over you, and—"

"No, no!" she cried. "You'll catch cold; you mustn't catch cold!" And she continued to brush him.

Amberson had brought Lucy's hat; Miss Fanny acted as lady's maid; and both victims of the accident were presently restored to about their usual appearance and condition of apparel. In fact, encouraged by the two older gentlemen, the entire party, with one exception, decided that the episode was after all a merry one, and began to laugh about it. But George was glummer than the December twilight now swiftly closing in.

"That darned horse!" he said. "I wouldn't bother about Pendennis, George," said his uncle. "You can send a man out for what's left of the cutter tomorrow, and Pendennis will gallop home to his stable; he'll be there a long while before we will, because all we've got to depend on to get us home is Gene Morgan's broken-down chafing dish yonder."

They were approaching the machine as he spoke, and his friend, again underneath it, heard him. He emerged, smiling. "She'll go," he said.

"What?"

"All aboard!"

He offered his hand to Isabel. She was smiling, but still pale, and her eyes, in spite of the smile, kept upon George in a shocked anxiety. Miss Fanny had already mounted to the rear seat, and George, after helping Lucy Morgan to climb up beside his aunt, was following. Isabel saw that his shoes were light things of patent leather, and that show was clinging to them. She made a little rush toward him, and, as one of his feet rested on the iron step of the machine, in mounting, she began to clean the snow from his shoe with her almost aerial lace handkerchief. "You mustn't catch cold!" she cried.

"Stop that!" George shouted, and furiously withdrew his foot. "For heaven's sake get in! You're standing in the snow yourself. Get in!"

Isabel consented, turning to Morgan, whose habitual expression of apprehensiveness was somewhat accentuated. He climbed up after her, George Amberson having gone to the other side. "You're the same Isabel I used to know!" he said in a low voice. "You're a divinely ridiculous woman."

"Am I, Eugene?" she said, not displeased. "Divinely and, 'ridiculous' just counterbalance each other, don't they? Plus one and minus one equal nothing; so you mean I'm nothing in particular?"

"No," he answered, tugging at a lever. "That doesn't seem to be precisely what I meant. There!" This exclamation referred to the subterranean machinery, for disarming sounds came from beneath the floor, and the vehicle plunged, then poised nimbly forward.

"Behold!" George Amberson exclaimed. "She does move! It must be another accident!"

"Accident?" Morgan shouted over his din. "No! She breathes, she stirs; she seems to feel a thrill of life along her keel!" And he began to sing "The Star Spangled Banner."

Amberson joined him lustily, and sang on when Morgan stopped. His nephew, behind, was gloomy. He had overheard his mother's conversation with the inventor; it seemed curious to him that this Morgan, of whom he had never heard until last night, should be using the name "Isabel" so easily; and George felt that it was not just the thing for his mother to call Morgan "Eugene," the resentment of the previous night came upon George again. Meanwhile his mother and Morgan continued their talk; but he could no longer hear what they said; the noise of the car and his uncle's songful mood prevented. He marked how animated Isabel seemed; it was not strange to see his mother so gay, but it was strange that a man not of the family should be the cause of her gaiety.

Lucy turned to him. "You tried to swing underneath me and break the fall for me when we went over," she said. "I knew you were doing that, and—it was nice of you."

"Wasn't any fall to speak of," he returned brusquely. "Couldn't have hurt either of us."

"Still it was friendly of you—and awfully quick, too. I'll not—I'll not forget it!"

Dinner Stories

A North Carolina doctor, inclined to be mindful of other people's business, was riding along a country road. He drew up where a native was husking corn in a field.

"You are gathering yellow corn?" said the doctor.

"Yes sir; planted that kind," came the reply.

"Won't get more than half a crop?" volunteered the physician.

"Don't expect to, sir; planted it on half shares."

The doctor was somewhat nettled at this, and replied: "You must be mighty near a fool."

"Yes, sir; only a fence between us."

A German prisoner was brought in and questioned by the American intelligence officer. After the questioning, the prisoner, who spoke English with a London accent, said that he had a question to ask. "I cannot understand what that soldier who bayoneted me meant," he remarked plaintively. "There were three of us, Caspar and Max and me. The soldier came running at us and we all put our hands in the air and we all said 'Kamerad.' But he shot Caspar and Max and put his bayonet into me and then he went running right on. And all he said was, 'Aw, go chase yourself!' I cannot understand what that soldier should mean." And the officer explained that the Yank had merely remarked that he was in a great hurry.

"All I did," said the prisoner, "was to take advantage of an opportunity." "Well," answered the patriot, "that's all Captain Kidd used to do."

THIN, NERVOUS PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

What It Is and How It Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve Force In Many Instances

SHOULD BE PRESCRIBED BY EVERY DOCTOR AND USED IN EVERY HOSPITAL

Says Editor of "Physicians' Who's Who."

Take plain bitro-phosphate is the advice of these physicians to thin, delicate, nervous people who lack vim, energy and nerve force, and there seems to be ample proof for the efficacy of this preparation to warrant the recommendation. Moreover, it is a judicious preparation for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arm, neck and bust, and replacing ailing hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty; there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

"Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate, known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by Smith Drug Co., in Janesville, and most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance of the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

"Clinical tests made in St. Catherine's Hospital, N. Y., showed that two patients gained in weight 23 and 21 pounds, respectively, through the administration of organic phosphate; both patients claim they have not felt as strong and well for the past twelve years.

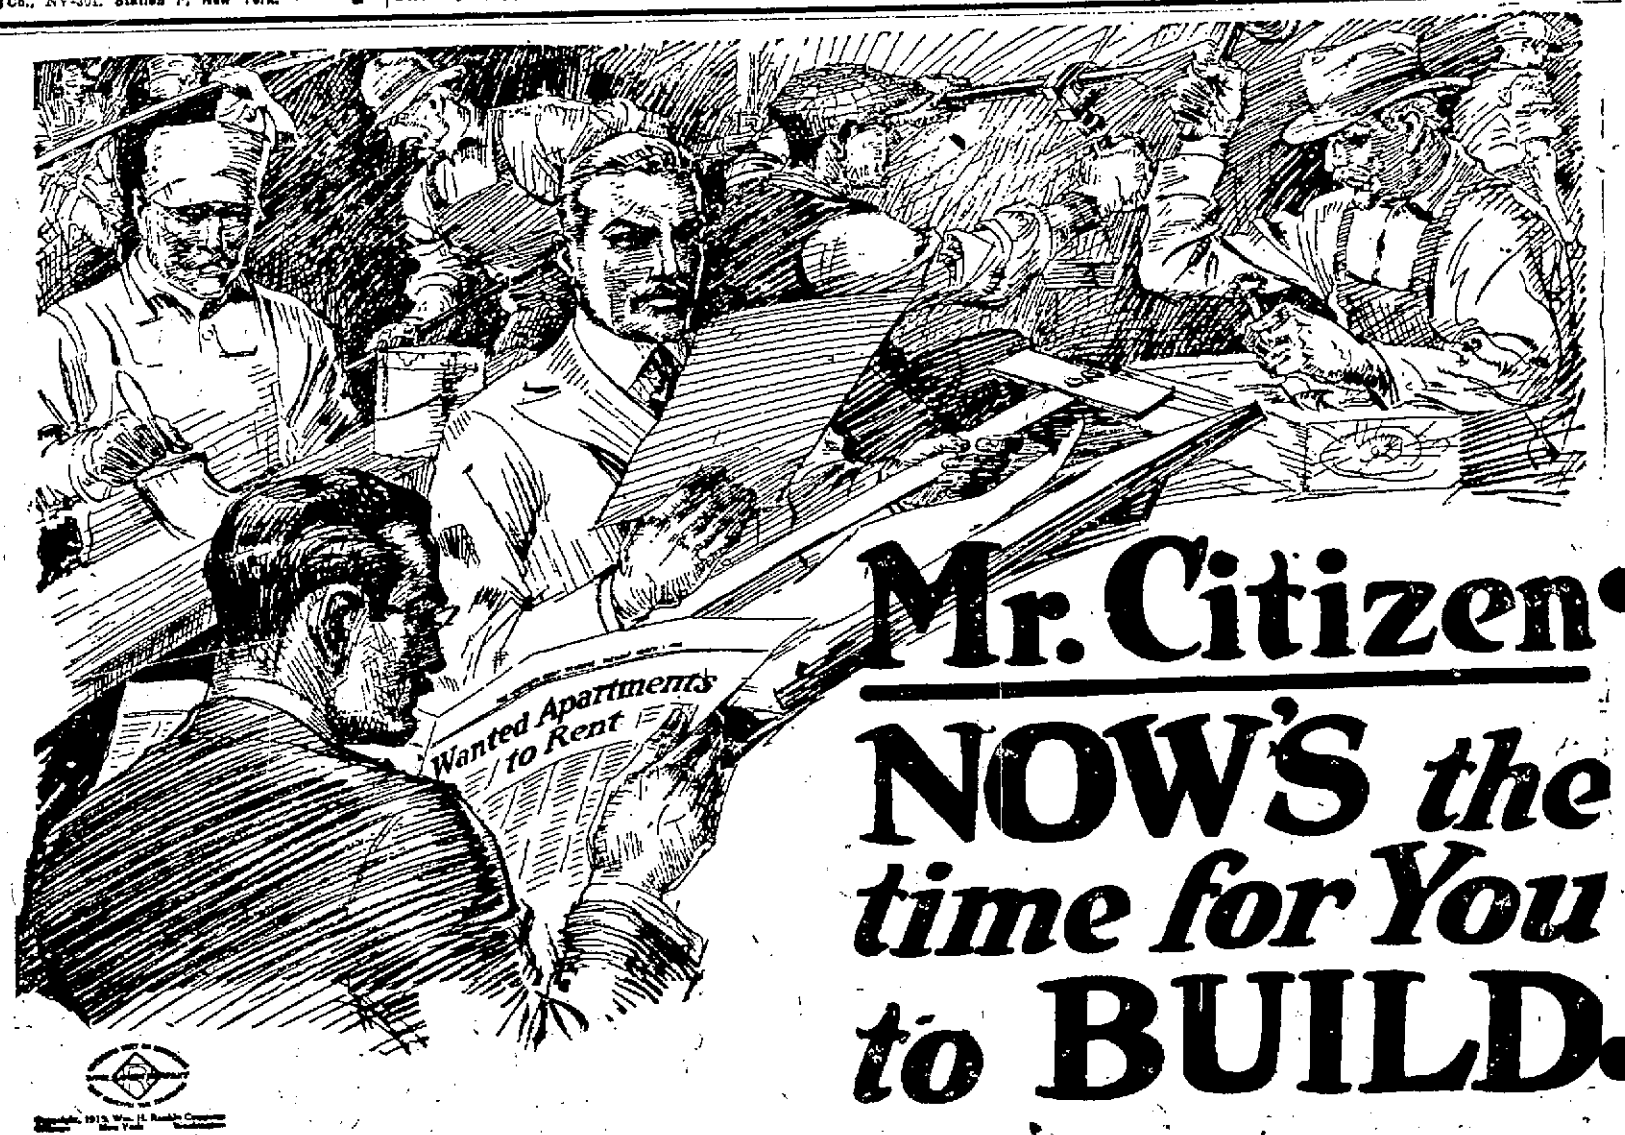

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, and eyes ought to brighten and the cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health."

Physicians and hospitals everywhere are now recognizing its merits by its use. In ever increasing quantities, Frederick Kelle, M. D., editor of New York Physician, "Who's Who," says: "Bitro-phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood." Joseph D. Harrigan, Former Visiting Specialist to North Eastern Dispensary, says: "Let those who are weak, thin, nervous, anaemic, or run-down, take a natural, unadulterated substance such as bitro-phosphate and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance."

Bitro-phosphate is made entirely of the organic phosphate compound referred to in the National Standard Dispensary as being an excellent tonic and nerve and a preparation which has recently acquired considerable reputation in the treatment of neurasthenia. The standard of excellence in strength and purity of its substance is beyond question, for every Bitro-phosphate tablet is manufactured in strict accordance with the U. S. Pharmacopoeia test requirement. Bitro-phosphate is therefore not a patent medicine and should not be confused with any of the secret nostrums, so-called tonics or widely advertised "cure-alls."

CAUTION:—Although Bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, owing to its tendency to increase weight it should not be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

Mr. Citizen NOW'S the time for You to BUILD.

HAVE you any conception of the demand for a place to live in this town? Have you watched rents increase, property values jump and throngs of people searching for a place to live? The housing situation in this city is strained to the breaking—there aren't places enough to go around.

We're Two Years Behind in Building

Government restrictions and orders, need of money for Liberty Loans, shortage of materials and labor—everything conspired to throw us back. We need houses, apartments, store and office buildings. It's a business opportunity.

Prices Are Not Going to Drop Far

Those who are in close touch with markets say that prices cannot drop to former levels—labor costs must remain high, demand for foodstuffs and building materials will force the fundamental law of supply and demand to work. In fact, they point out, building costs have not kept pace with increasing prices of foodstuffs and labor. We can build now for less relatively than at any time in years.

Build Now!

Repair Now!

Paint Now!

Buy Now!

Janesville Chamber of Commerce

THIS building shortage coincides with the most critical industrial condition this country has ever had to face. We're making the transition from peace to war. Living costs are high. Unemployment for a large number of men means disaster. Without orders factories find it difficult to change from war orders to peace conditions. We must avoid industrial stagnation.

The Government Urges Us to Build Now

Realizing the need for immediate action, the U. S. Department of Labor has organized a movement to stimulate home building. Your $10,000 contract, they point out, forces ten for $1,000—those ten call for 100 sub-contracts for $100. If 50,000 others follow your lead it will reach clear back into the fabric of our nation and help stabilize business.

Forward—American Business

Let's get our big-minded, broad-visioned bankers, our property owners and our contractors together and start to BUILD NOW. It's a business chance, an opportunity to build up local prosperity and help get our country back on a Prosperity Basis. Start the ball rolling today with your contract!

The ROMANCE of TRUE STORIES of BUSINESS SUCCESSFUL WOMEN

BY EDITH MORIARTY

Celia Oshinsky was born in Poland and came to this country with her parents when she was a tiny baby. The family established itself in Cincinnati and it was there that Celia received her education. She spent three years in a public school, but she had to stay home so often to take care of her five small brothers and sisters that all her five years only amounted to about three.

At the age when most little girls are beginning to go to dancing school and struggle with Latin verbs Celia started out to earn her share for the Oshinsky family. She acted as a maid and only servant in a large and very ordinary American family by the name of Miller. Although Celia could remember nothing of the old country it was not until she entered the Miller's household that she became thoroughly American. At home she still spoke Polish and she still clung to the foreign customs of her family, but gradually her views changed and she began to want something different from the life she was accustomed to. She carried her new ideas home with her, but her family was slow to accept them and they called her "Quaker".

The Millers also discovered the change in their little maid-of-all-work and as she became more restless with her daily rounds of dish-washing, sweeping and dusting, cooking they sought to help her and spur her on to do better things. They held many councils of three. Mr. and Mrs. Miller and Celia, but the results were not promising. The list of things which a 15-year-old girl could do was pitifully small and unattractive, especially when that girl could not speak good or even plain English and had little schooling.

One day at one of these talks Celia unthinkingly opened the road to her success. She shyly said that she had always thought she would like to sew, but there was no time to teach her and she never had the time, anyhow. It was Mrs. Miller who discovered, at once the possibilities in this confession.

"Why don't you sew, then?" she asked, and she explained to Celia about dress-making schools which paid girls while they were learning their trade. Celia was delighted and Mrs. Miller found a good school for her to attend, but the pay was only enough to cover carfare and no more.

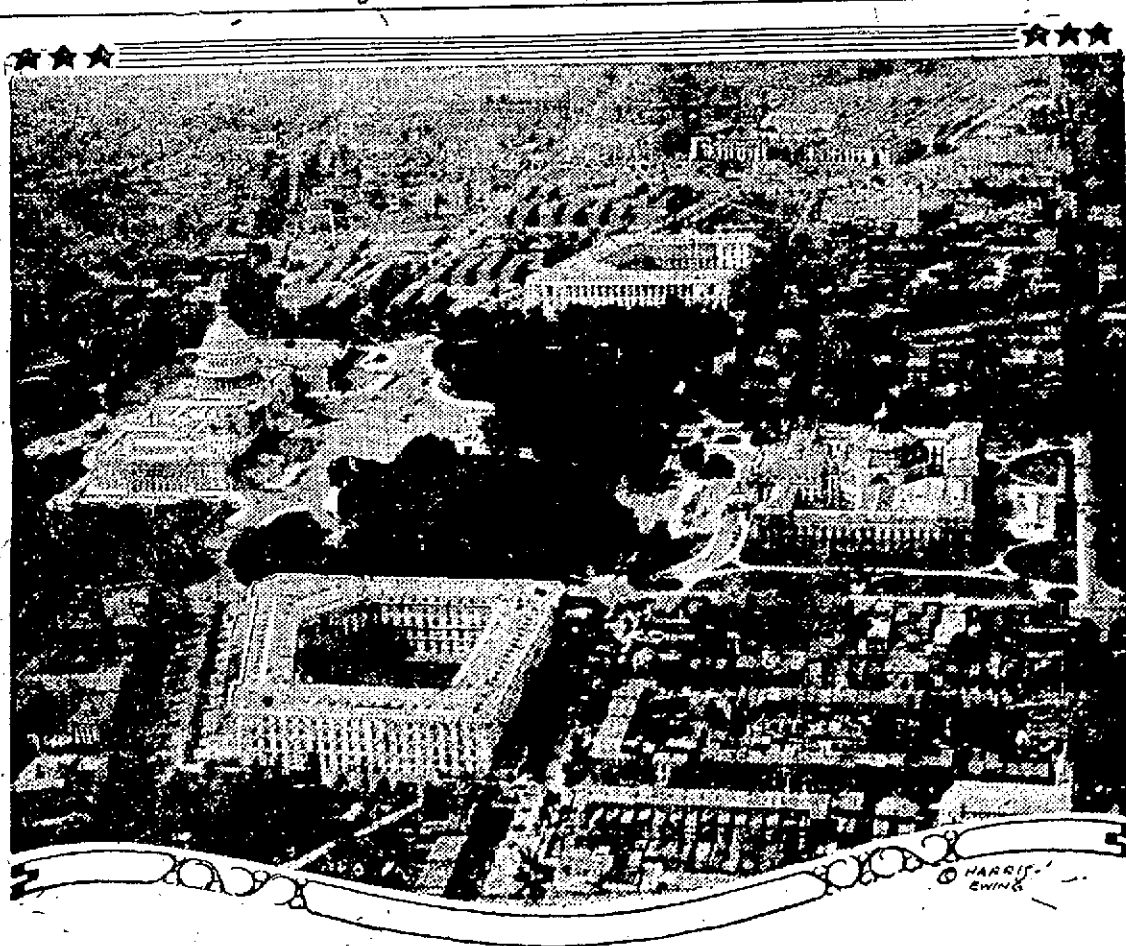

Celia was downhearted. At Miller's she was a maid and a wage which just about paid the rent at home. How could she go to school and give up that money. But she did find a way. She went to the school in daytime and evenings she did wash for Mrs. Miller or her friends or watched the children while the families went out and with these odd bits of work she earned almost her usual three dollars a week. She bought her course in half the regular time by applying herself diligently and then because she wanted to be more than a mere dressmaker she continued her evening work and she went on to other schools, and at the end of two years she had become an expert tailor, giving a certain part of her time to careful studying of each one of the operations.

She had many offers from tailors to act as assistant cutter or fitter, but she did not want to do that. She explained that she wanted to have a larger field. She finally borrowed enough money to rent a small room in a private house and there she started in business for herself. Mrs. Miller, of course, was one of her first customers and one of her best boosters. All of Mrs. Miller's friends and relatives were soon wearing clothes made by Miss Celia Oshinsky. And it was not long before the room was much too small and inadequate. Celia did not know what to do. She knew what she wanted to do, but it looked like such a big undertaking. She told Mr. Miller about it and asked him to advise her about the business end of the matter.

He did, and the result was that the next month found Miss Celia Oshinsky in a suite of three rooms in one of the most fashionable suburban districts about Cincinnati. There was a waiting room furnished in gray wicker and crochets with soft lamps and all the latest fashion books on the table. There was a fitting room with all the most modern equipment, and there was the workroom, and in it there were two machines and three girls busy stitching, ripping and cutting while Celia herself was busy answering the callers and taking orders. That was her start, and she says now that her only mistake was that she did not call herself Madame Oshinsky on the gold leaf lettering on the door. Still, she is but 30 years old. Her establishment is twice its original size. She never has less than 15 girls working for her and she is sending her younger brother and sister to college. As for her father, she has bought her aged father a little farm in the country.

GIDEONS, ORGANIZED HERE, IN CONVENTION

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Cleveland, O.—Filed one upon the other the bibles placed in hotel rooms by the Gideons would make 88 piles the height of the Woolworth building. Placed end to end the bibles would reach almost from New York to Philadelphia.
A train of 30 cars would be required to transport them.
These figures were made public in connection with the opening of the international convention of Gideons. The exact figures are 898,501, of which 271,000 have been placed in hotels in the United States and 26,277 in Canadian hostleries. But the Gideons are not satisfied with their good work. They estimate that there are 2,000,000 hotel rooms in the United States and Canada and that three-fourths of them are without bibles. A campaign was launched at the convention to complete the raising of an endowment fund of $250,000, the object of which is to see that there is a bible in every hotel in the United States and Canada. The Gideons propose to raise $100,000 of this total among themselves.
Over 1,000 Gideons and their families from all over the North American continent are here to attend the meet. Registration, automobile tours about the city, song and praise services at convention headquarters and a banquet make up the opening day's program. Business sessions will be held Friday and Saturday. Sunday Gideons will occupy all of the pulpits of the city and on Monday a big steamer has been chartered to take the whole party to Niagara Falls for a two-day outing.
This is the twentieth anniversary of the formation of the Gideon society.

2.75 BEER INTOXICATES SAYS FEDERAL JUDGE

New York, July 24.—Beer of 2.75 percent alcoholic content is held to be intoxicating in a decision returned today by Federal Judge Chaffee of Brooklyn, in a test case brought by the government against Martin Schmauder of New Haven, Conn., who was charged with selling beer in violation of the war-time prohibition law. Schmauder demurred to the government's charge. Judge Chaffee over-ruled the demurrer.

"Under the internal revenue laws and all standards by which congress could have viewed the matter the beer described in the present information (2.75 percent beer) was of the class known as intoxicating liquor, and as such its sale was prohibited," says the opinion.

Constitutionality of the war-time prohibition act was upheld in an opinion handed down yesterday by Judge Chaffee in a test case against Stephen A. Minery, a Meriden, Conn., saloonkeeper. It is reported that an appeal will be taken in each case.

Pankhurst Family is Split by Bolshevism

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
London—Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of the now deceased Mrs. Pankhurst of militant fame, is trying to found an English bolshevik party in order to make it clear it stands with the Russian communists. No one in England has any doubt where Sylvia stands, or that her mother and her sister Christabel are entirely out of sympathy with the intensely anarchistic and communistic type of firebrand theories propounded by Sylvia. In fact Miss Christabel and her mother are doing all they can to combat Sylvia's propaganda, and Sylvia no longer has anything to do with the recognized women's party movement which her mother founded and which Christabel is now leading.

PROMPT ACTION QUELLS HONDURAS REVOLUTION

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
San Salvador, Monday, July 22.—Prompt action by the government of Honduras has prevented a threatened revolution, according to dispatches received today from Tegucigalpa, Honduras.
These dispatches reported that General Andres Leiza was preparing an invasion of Honduras through the Nicaragua frontier.
An earlier dispatch from San Salvador Monday reported the government of Honduras had declared a state of siege because of violence in elections there and the threat of revolution by political enemies.

British Equip Airplanes With Safety Parachutes

London—All aeroplanes used by the royal air force will be equipped with life-saving parachutes. Whether this procedure will be ordered for all commercial aircraft is yet to be decided, but it is regarded as certain that all training aeroplanes will be compelled to carry some form of life saving appliance.
Extensive experiments have shown the value of parachutes in saving life from machines that catch fire in flight. The parachute is attached to the aeroplane so that a person even a glider can jump from either side of the machine without entangling the parachute cordage.

No settlement was reached at the morning session of the conference. The conference adjourned until evening to allow the miners' representatives time to consider further government proposals on the question of piece rates.

THE PASSING OF MIKE MALONE

The picture of the Naked Nymph Who sits astride the Moon. Still looks down from above the bar Or Mike Malone's saloon. And Mike still stands behind the bar, With heavy paunch and bow. Stuck in his breast a diamond pin And o'er his arm a towel. While row on row the goblets stand In glittering array. Like doughboys at attention, Up and down the long buffet. But somehow things are not at all The same around the place: Also, that sweet glad smile has flown From Michael's friendly face. No longer does the blue smoke curl No longer does the candlelight. No more that soggy sawdust smell And stench of staling beers. Ah, changed indeed by order From the nights of the land For Mike to chuck his hard stuff. So he runs a soft drink stand.

Now headless boys who never dared To enter Michael's shop Walk boldly in and order up Their ginger ale and pop. The children coming home from school Rush through the swinging door To buy their ice cream sodas And play marbles on the floor.

Come, Michael man, cash in your chip. You hold a losing hand. You never were cut out to run An ice cream soda stand. It's written down in black and white, Friend Mike, that you must go As went poor Lo, the Indian, Cowboy and buffalo.

Turn to the wall the Naked Nymph Who sits astride the Moon. We'll hang a sign "To Let" outside On Mike Malone's saloon. C. E. H.

For Tractor Lubrication

Heavy Polarine Oil

Stanolind Tractor Oil

Extra Heavy Polarine Oil

Stanolind Tractor Oil has been found, through severe and thorough tests, to be the best lubricant for more than one-half of the tractors made.

This oil is one of great durability. It stands the high temperature developed in a tractor engine without change in body.

It has the correct body to thoroughly lubricate the remotest frictional surfaces, eliminating scored cylinders and undue wear.

Where mechanical conditions or design make it desirable to use a slightly heavier, or slightly lighter, oil than Stanolind Tractor Oil, Extra Heavy Polarine Oil or Heavy Polarine Oil is recommended.

Any Standard Oil representative will be glad to show you the chart of Tractor lubrication, prepared by our Engineering Staff. It indicates specifically which of these three oils the Standard Oil Engineers have found will give the best results in your particular tractor.

Pies and Tea—The American Y. W. C. A. In France Is Famous for Both of Them

The foundations of the Y. W. C. A. in France were laid not upon a rock as per Biblical instruction, but upon tea. Whenever it went it got out a tea table, set forth the cups, brewed some tea, found the lemons and then passed the sugar.

Hundreds of cups of tea were passed to nurses by directors of the service club. The scene in this picture, snapped at Angers, France, has been repeated a thousand times in every corner where the Blue Triangle followed the Stars and Stripes.

This nurse's hut is built of red brick. Its rough beam ceiling is covered with pine branches and leaves from the forest outside its doors. It is located on the grounds of what was once an old monastery. But where the quiet brown monks once dwelt, now the quiet brown nurses, in white aprons, red lined caps and jaunty caps, run back and forth from hospital ward to barracks.

And every afternoon they come to the hut for tea.

U. S. ARMY OFFICERS GRILLED ON CRUEL TREATMENT IN PRISONS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, July 24.—The special house war investigating committee which yesterday gave the red war department records showing that three commissioned and five non-commissioned officers had been court-martialed because of cruelties in the near East, today were considering the advisability of calling additional witnesses. It was believed that if more witnesses are called they will include a number of army officers of high rank.

The records submitted to the committee yesterday by General March, chief of staff, gave the first official confirmation to reports of cruel treatment by their own officers of American soldiers in France which have created an indignant stir in congressional circles. Names of the officers charged were given in a circular from General Pershing and from reports of Brig. General Edward R. Krieger, acting judge advocate. They included Lieut. P. H. Smith, known in the service as "Hard-boiled" Smith, who is serving a sentence of 18 months at Governor's Island for his part in ill treatment of prisoners under his charge at farm No. 2, near Paris.

It has been charged that while only officers of lower grades were convicted and their superior officers allowed to go free, the investigation, it is believed, may take a turn to develop the truth or falseness of these assertions.

Efforts of some of the house Republicans to increase the steering committee from five to seven or nine were voted down. LOYALTY OF WIFE SAVES HIM FROM JAIL

Lake Geneva, July 24.—Only the loyalty of his wife, who paid a bill of $210 to the Hotel Geneva that he "jumped" to land in the meshes of the law, saved E. H. Hamilton, a Chicago bond seller who posed as a rich lawyer while he ran into debt, from an extended stay behind the bars. Mrs. Hamilton went all the way to her home in Kansas City to secure the funds to "free her husband."

"It's the last chance I'll give him," she said to Judge Jesse R. Hand, when she made the settlement of the bill and of costs amounting to more than $50. "He makes money but he doesn't save it. He likes to jingle a lot of coin in his pockets and he has a confirmed habit of spending too freely. He can't expect me to help him again."

Hamilton spent 10 days at the Hotel Geneva with his wife and a woman friend, then disappeared and was arrested in Chicago, July 11. As he was unable to furnish $1,000 cash bond, he was obliged to spend the past week in the county jail at Elkhorn.

GIANTS DEFEAT MEN ON DIAMOND BY 43 TO 5

Philadelphia.—Capt. Mayme Scott's unbeatable aggregation of feminine baseball stars, composed of business women of Ardmore, defeated the Ardmore Chamber of Commerce nine by a score of 43 to 5 in their first battle at the Ardmore playground.

Of course his sounds badly for the male pastimes, but they are soothing their rattled spirits today with the knowledge—or alibi—that all left-handed men had to use their rights, and all right-handers their lefts in the contest.

The adding machine broke while the errors were being added up.

Kills 'Em Both.

Green Bay.—A machine that kills both the potato bug and the leaf hopper in short order has been invented by a Shawano man. The machine may be run by hand between the rows of vines and be set according to the height and width necessary. It reaches out on both sides, shakes the bug into its jaws and crushes it.

Shepherd Dog Dies.

La Crosse.—Rolf von Wagnen, declared by experts to be the best specimen of a German shepherd dog ever brought to this country, is dead here of pneumonia. He was 3 years old and the property of Dr. P. R. Weston, president of the Shepherd Dog club of America, who valued him at $3,000. Rolf won many prizes in the shows at Chicago.

Hohenzollern Wears "Spiffy" Clothes in Island Retreat

Frederick Hohenzollern at his home on the island of Weichenburg. Frederick Hohenzollern, some time crown prince of the German empire, probably has been laughing in the sleeves of his modishly cut ultra-English coat over recent rumors of his presence in Germany as head of the revolutionary movement to restore the Hohenzollern rule. For Frederick at least enjoys measurable security in his somewhat barren retreat on Weichenburg Island, security apparently is what the former crown prince desires now above all things.

The accompanying photograph, taken recently, shows Frederick in front of his island home, a former parsonage, garbed like a fashion plate from Bond Street or Piccadilly, London. Apparently any bitterness over the war, result in his loss of an empire and much of a country, did not hinder in him any hatred nor alter his well known predilection for things English—particularly things English sartorially.

At very nearly 40 years of age, Frederick affects a decided youthfulness in his dress. In the picture he is wearing a suit of rough English tweed, built after a fashion known among his cousins, the English, as "spiffy." The coat is a pinch-back or belted-in model much adopted by the graduating classes of 1919 in America. The coat sleeves, it will be observed, are open-ended, permitting a generous display of white silk cuff and Mr. Hohenzollern is comfortable in an informally-dressy soft silk collar and bowing necktie.

However, Frederick is not always so particular about the sartorial niceties. According to Henry Suydam, former war correspondent in Europe, there are times—rather frequent times—when Frederick seems to revel in the comforts of an undress, even approaching slovenliness. One of his favorite costumes, according to Mr. Suydam, consists of a pair of weather-beaten English knickerbockers, an old white sweater, none too clean, an ordinary pair of Dutch sabots, or wooden shoes.

Those who know him best say that Frederick is much more interested in his own physical comfort, security and well being than in German affairs of state, and that he has no desire to lead a revolt—or anything else other than an aimless, self-indulgent existence free from molestation.

THE WISHING PLANE

When Captain Brave told the children that they were going to leave the castle and start on their way again Jack and the girls were eager to know where their next stopping place was to be.

"We are going to Paris next," said the captain.

"We will see the palace at Versailles where the Germans signed the peace treaty; the Hotel Crillon at Paris, where President Wilson and the other American statesmen held their meetings; the embassy building, where the main sessions of the peace conference were held; the beautiful home of Prince Murat, where President and Mrs. Wilson lived on their first visit to France, and lots of other interesting places."

Of course the children were very eager to get started when they heard this, so much so that they were not as sad as they might have been on leaving dear King Charles and Queen May, and the castle in which they had had such a splendid time.

Late that afternoon they climbed aboard the airplane, waved good-bye to the king and queen and started for the French capital.

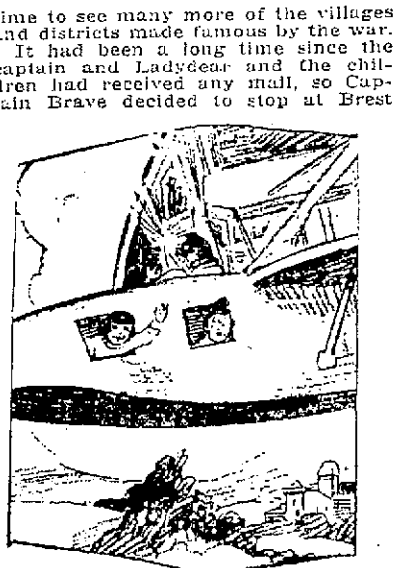

"I hope that we get word about mother and father there," said Jeanne as the plane soared away.

"I hope we do to," said Ladydear.

Ladydear noted with pride though that the weeks of play and travel with Jack and Jane had made Jeanne very healthy and happy.

The children were sleeping soundly when the plane left the little kingdom and were still sleeping hours later when the plane reached France and flew again over territory that was very familiar to Captain Brave.

The children were up, though, in time to see many more of the villages and districts made famous by the war. It had been a long time since the captain and Ladydear and the children had received any mail, so Captain Brave decided to stop at Brest on the way to Paris. You remember that the captain had made arrangements with the officers at Brest to hold all mail and messages for him there.

Now can you guess what surprising word there was for the children and their friends in the mail the captain got?

Well, I'll tell you.

There was a short note from the doctor at the hospital at Rheims. The doctor told Captain Brave that he had found Jeanne's father. The wounded man was in what is called a convalescent hospital in Paris.

This is a hospital, you know, where soldiers, nearly well, stay until they are able to work again. The doctor said he had told Jeanne's father about his daughter and told him to remain in the hospital ward until word could reach Captain Brave. At the end of the note were instructions as to how to reach the hospital.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

It would seem, when looking over the lists, that the daughters of prominent statesmen are very typical of the fine type of American womanhood which has been developed so rapidly in the past few years. There is Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of the late ex-President Roosevelt. She is well known for all the active interest she has in all things concerning women and especially in working women. She is also active in politics and is closely associated with Mrs. McCormick, another woman who is leading our American politicians of the fair sex. Mrs. McCormick was Ruth Hanna, daughter of the late Mark Hanna, also a well known statesman.

Another woman who is typically American and very modern is Miss Helen Taft, daughter of the ex-president. Miss Taft is much younger than either of the other two women, and yet she has accomplished much in her 25 years. She has already had the distinction of being the youngest woman to be president of a college. Since October, 1917, she has been dean of a new women's college, which was her own alma mater, and when the president was called away some months ago she was made acting president. Miss Taft has always been known as one of the most democratic girls who ever lived at the White House and her friends are many of them in the wage-earning class. In fact she claims that her best friends at college were earning their own way through school.

At present Miss Taft is on her way to Europe where she will make a study of foreign educational systems. She will bring back to this country what is worth while from the European schools, colleges and universities.

GIRL DIRECTS POSTOFFICE
Miss Violet M. Bennett of Montclair, N. J., a Y. M. C. A. girl, has become America's premiere overseas postmistress since the beginning of the war. This record stands not only on the volume of business handled from her postoffice, but from the size of the office and staff and the territory covered by it an area greater than the state of Texas.

The territory which Miss Bennett's postoffice serves is France and the Rhineland. Her office staff in Paris consists of 85 secretaries and the number of letters handled daily runs near 100,000. To make the job even more difficult more than half of this mail has to be forwarded.

This mail is not for the $6000 Y. M. C. A. secretaries alone who are in Europe, but for thousands of American doughboys who have their letters from home addressed in care of the various "Y" huts.

Miss Bennett went to France early in the fall of 1917 to direct the work for the association. A short time after her arrival George M. Hendee, a Y. M. C. A. secretary, organized the Y. M. C. A. postoffice with a staff of five and made Miss Bennett his assistant.

Later Mr. Hendee returned to America, and Miss Bennett succeeded him in charge of the work, which has been built up under her direction to its present capacity.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The lumber firm of Leach & Burpee has been organized and Mr. Burpee will continue the business.

The funeral services for Nathaniel Case were held this afternoon, quite a few people attending them. Rev. Sewall officiated.

At the Y. M. C. A. building of workers held their anniversary exercises at Lippitt's hall. None of the workers and their families are to attend the Temple of Honor excursion to Madison yesterday say they had a very good time. There were no accidents to mar the enjoyment.

Malcolm Jeffries, who was injured in the railroad accident Monday, when Nathaniel Case was killed, is reported as getting along very comfortably and there seems to be every reason for expecting a recovery as fast as the nature of the injuries will permit.

The First M. E. church social, an enjoyable affair, the time was fully spent in music, and ice cream and other refreshments were served to those who wished them.

Tom McKay, George McKay, John McKay, Walter Myers and Will Conrad have returned from their camping trip to Walworth county.
